When I started my truth journey approximately 10 years ago, I realized that something was amiss on this planet, especially in my home country the USA. I had noticed things here and there that didn't add up, but thanks to the many distractions that I allowed in my life, I was very unaware of what was really going on and rarely took the time to research anything. But eventually I did start listening to alternative news outside of the tightly controlled main stream media and started asking some tough questions. One of the first pieces of information that I came across that bothered me was that in 1983, 90% of American media was owned by 50 companies. By 2011, that same 90% was now controlled by only 6 companies. This didn't set well with me as I was taught that I was part of a free-enterprise system. This looked more like a slow, methodical, controlled takeover. I then learned that the Federal Reserve was not a US government entity, but a private company. How could I have not known this? I'm an educated person and my parents were very intelligent people as were their parents. How could three generations of our family not have known this truth? Then came the truth about the Federal Reserve Act of 1913 that was never officially (or legally) passed that started the USA on this downward spiral of debt and the paying of personal income taxes to this private company, the Federal Reserve. The US government used to print its own money and now our country was a slave to a private company? How in the hell did our leaders allow this to happen? I heard the names of wealthy industrialists like Rockefeller, Rothschild, Warburg and Morgan being associated with the passing of this act and their roles in the financial takeover of America from this point on.

The who, what, where, when, and why of gold has been a tantalizing subject for authors, investors, conspiracy theorists, and others to obsess about even before it was gathered from households across the country, melted into the bars, and hidden from public view. Where is this gold? Who controls it? And what effect does it have on the economic and political forces around us? William Garner believes he knows, and he clearly explains his theory in this well-written 69-Minute Book. J.P. Morgan testified to Congress in 1912 that "Money is gold, nothing else." And in the 100 years following this testimony, people everywhere have continued to view gold as the real currency of the world. Even after FDR confiscated gold from the masses by prohibiting the hoarding of gold through Executive Order 6102, concerned individuals here and abroad have followed that gold to guarded government depositories and attempted to expose its other clandestine hiding places, both real and imagined. Enter the Jesuits and their accountants • the House of Rothschild. Their Illuminati-like influence of the world gold markets with the help of long forgotten mystic celestial-solar-lunar-cycles will have you turning pages and desperately hoping for a happy ending. You would not expect less from an editor of Dan Brown's The Da Vinci Code. With quotes from notable figures in U.S. history and anecdotes from his service as a U.S. Army Airborne Ranger, Garner's narrative is a gripping one, and his story certainly brings to mind some of the darker elements of Dan Brown's internationally bestselling novel. The alternate reality which Garner introduces in this book is worthy of an oft-used allusion to Lewis Carroll's Alice and Wonderland.
