I really hate to write negative reviews, but this translation couldn't be worse: At the opening of scene one, the English reads, "In vain! In vain I have studied the mystery of creation in my long vigils through the night." The French reads, "Rien!--En vain j'interroge, en mon ardente veille, la nature et le Cr ateur;" A more accurate translation to English should have been, "Nothing!--In my ardent vigil, I question in vain nature and my Creator;" I would have preferred to have this booklet libretto because the print is easy to read, but this Schirmer libretto is an English "invention", not a translation.

This is just a libretto in French and English - words only, no music. It would be far more cost-effective to download the libretto from one of many sites on the internet.
